HONOMULY, JUNE 23, 1869. Ten British brig Fred Thompson, 166 days from Liverpool, arrived on the 16th instant She brings an assorted cargo consigned to T. H. Davies. The American ship Atlanta arrived on the 21st inst., 23 days from San Francisco, bringing a small mail and only two days later dates than those brought by the D. C. Murray. This vessel is chartered to load guano for the American Guano Company.

We note the departure of the brig Kameha meha V for the Guano Islands, on the 21st dispatch, and sailed to-day for San Francisco, $41,192 61.

The fine schooner Paughi completed her first about sixty hours, of calm. trial trip to Hilo within eight days, arriving here on the 21st. She proves herself a fast sailer and comfortable sea bont.

The ship Atlanta brought no additional news from San Francisco, regarding Island produce, which is quoted at same rates as the mail prewious.

The next mail is expected by the steamer, due here on Monday next, with dates to June 17, from San Francisco. We understand that the steamship Ainx, or some other steamer, may take the place of the Idaho for one trip. A full freight awaits the steamer, which will leave, as per time-table, on Saturday, July 3.

The Haw bark R. W. Wood, from Bremen, may be expected here in a week or two, and the bark Comet, from San Francisco, in about Trade is exceedingly dull. We are sorry to state that the dry weather still continues, doing much injury to growing cane.

PACIFIC RAILROAD. - Any doubt that existed in regard to the meaning of the late act of Congress on the subject of the Pacific Railroad Junction is removed by the following statement in the Truckee Tribuse of April 17th: We learn from W. D. Miller, agent of the Central Pacific Railroad Company here, that they have bought all that portion of the Union Pacific Railroad west of Ogden and that consequently the termination of the Central Pacific Railroad will be at that place. On last Thursday, C. Crocker, and other Central Pacific Ballroad win On last Thursday, C. Crocker, and other prominent members of the Company, went prominent members of the Company, went prominent members of the Company, went out to receive the purchased property. The Central Pacific Railroad Company contemplated moning over the purchased road only a short time, that is, until they can grade and build a road of their own from the terminus of their track to Ogden, as that portion of the road built by the Union Pacific Company is built almost without grading, over hills and through walleys. The Bear river bridge, built by the Union Pacific Railroad Company will have to be replaced by a new and stronger structure.

Meanwhile Sacramento is preparing to celebrate the junction of the two roads on the present line. The rejoicings are expected to come off between the 26th and 30th of this month. The Ber says:

"The Central Sacramento Valley and Western Pacific roads will put at the Committee's disposal all the cars and locomotives that can be spared to bring people from along these lines—the California Steam Navigation Company will press all their boats to to the service, the Vallejo road will lend a helping band with a will, and San Francisco It is believed, will with her usual generosity, send a liberal delegation to help swell the acclaim. The people dwelling along all the lines of travel, want to, and hope to be here on that great day; and all the locomotives not in actual service are to be concentrated at this point with a foll head of steam on, and when the telegraph announces that the last rall is being laid, all the bells in the city are to be rong, all these locomotives are to send forth a scream of joy—all the stationary engines in town are to join in the grand mechanical chorus, and all the Seamboats, with both bells and whisties, are to send the joyous sound along the waters, telling the Facific that it has been bound to the Atlantic by fetters of iron, never to be removed. The secleties of all kinds—firemen, military, plonoers, mechanics, etc., will turn out on the occasion and make the display the finest, perhaps, that has ever been seen here.

> A FISH STORY .- For the want of something else sensational, a shark story was got up last Tuesday. A lot of children, whose parents should have kept them at school,were bathing in the harbor, at the foot of the Esplanade, when the fin of a shark was espied, projecting above the water, and making towards the youngsters. "Shark! Shark !" shouted somebody, and the bathers skedaddled. Mr. Shark, unsuspicious of evil, hovered about, and was eventually enticed by a baited hook, and so hauled on shore. He measured only four feet-a juvenile shark-and only wanted to have a good time with the boys.

THE Examination of the Fort Street School was attended on Friday of last week, by many of the parents of the pupils, members of the Board of Education, teachers of other schools, and other friends of Education. The school has been under its present organization, but a short time, and many of the pupils were new to the school. The appearance and proficiency of the scholars was most commendable and good results are confidently anticipated.

We hear good accounts of the examination of the female Seminary at Waialua. None of our "Staff!!!" were invited to go, so we can not speak, from personal knowledge on the subject. But our information is most

AN ACCIDENT .- On Thursday last, as His Majesty was driving into town, on the Waikiki road he was met by Mr. Chung Hoon, whose borse, in passing the carriage of His Majesty, became frightened and unmanageable, upsetting and seriously damaging the buggy in which Mr. Chung Hoon was driving. His Majesty at once stopped his carriage, alighted and after assisting in extricating the horse from the buggy, directed Mr. Self, (who, in the mean time had driven up in an express wagon,) to assist Mr. Chung Hoon in getting back to town with his wrecked vehicle and frightened horse.

THE American Steam Fire-Proof Safe Co., of New York, Boston, and Baltimore, have succeeded in producing a Fire-proof Safe unequaled by anything hitherto invented, as has been demonstrated by numerous trials in the Atlantic cities. These safes are fitted with Sargeant's Combination Locks, and form the most perfect security against fire and burgiary of anything hitherto known. The shell of the safe is formed of plates of steel and iron welded together, and almost beyond the power of cutting with the chisel. A sample can be seen in the Counting-room of Castle & Cooke, who are the agents for the Islands.

THE amount of subscription, for the Makawao Seminary, has now reached $4,000. It will however take much more to erect and furnish the building, and start it on a sure basis. Hon. C. R. Bishop has been most assiduous, notwithstanding the hot weather, in getting subscriptions. Rev. C. B. Andrews says he takes to himself much credit, in the matter of the subscription, in having got Mr. Bishop to undertake it. It is proposed that the subscribers should elect Trustees resident on Maul, and that the body of Trustees shall thereafter be self-perpetuating, in like manner as the Makiki school Was.

THE Cuban army consists of eight men and a boy, divided into three divisions, four brigades and nine regiments. It is commanded by Seffor Cospedes and seven subordinate officers, none of whom ranks higher than a Major—the boy being, of courage, a minor, and therefore, by the laws of Ferdinand and Isabella, incliging the four than the course of the co ble to office. This boy, who is the rank and file of the illierating army, was a public nui-sance before he came a private, and is still a vexation to his superiors, because of his fendness for stealing the national handkerchief and using it as a haversack for the transportation of potatoes. The army, I should mention, was raised in a considerable haste, and after it had taken the field, it was found that only one offi-cer possessed a pocket handkerchief. This he patriotically presented to the Republic, and the entire liberating nose is now wiped on the national property.

The troops are rather poorly armed. There are one single and two double-barrelled guns in the possession of the patriot army, and there was also at one time a breech-loading rifle, but the rifle regiment fell, in climbing over a fence and broke his rifle. General Cespeder has no cavalry, though he has written to the Cuban sympathizers in this city imploring them to raise funds sufficient to buy a velocipede on which to mount one of his regiments. He is also totally destitute of artillery, though early also totally destitute of artillery, though early in the revolutionary struggle he captured a cannon of the church, who had unwarily walked out after dark alone and unprotected. The liberators, however, soon found that they had too great a bore in this canon—who was a garrulous old fellow—and they subsequently released him. after stealing his cassock to be garmious old fellow—and they subsequently released him, after stealing his cassock to be used as a national flag.

The plan of campaign against the Spanish troops, which has been adopted by the Cuban General, is conceived with consummate skill. He has taken up a strong position along the range of mountains which extend a distance of one hundred and fifty miles in the interior of the Island, where the Spaniards may hunt for him until the Broadway Underground Railroad is completed, without ever getting a sight of him. Lying hid during the day in their mountain fastness—a fastness which the slow-moving Spaniards never succeed in coming up to—the patriot General sallies forth with his army at night, and goes in search—not of Spanish troops who are lying for him—but for Spanish chickens, who lay for their barbarous owners. The Republican army separates into eight cilumns, each of which boldly attacks the loyal henroosts, and confiscates the loyal chickens. The army thus contrives to subsistentially on poultry, and though, in some respects it expects it cannot be said to live in deven. entirely on poultry, and though, in some respects, it cannot be said to live in clover, it is nevertheless usually in high feather.
The eggs have lately begun to fail somewhat,
owing to the lateness of the season.
From the New York Citizen.

Hypocausy.—Thweatt, the little Senator from Tallapoosa, telegraphs from Washington as follows: "Washington, Sept. 30, 3 p m.—
The Secretary of War sends orders to General Meade to distribute, at once, the troops of his command, with an especial eye to the protection of the loyal men of Alsbame." The Government is pledged to a full, fair, and free ballot. The Secretary of War never did anything of the kind, and Thweatt is very impadent when he talks about the Government being pledged to anything that is free and fair, especially the ballot,—Montgomery Mail. A TRIP TO LAHAINA.

We left Honolulu at 5 P. M., on Saturday, the 5th Inst., and bad a pleasant passage, on the Kate Lee. The winds were fair, passengers sociable, cheer good, and barring an accident to the jib, which delayed us a couple of hours, there was nothing worth recording on the voyage. We anchored in front of Lahaina the next day. It was a glorious evening, with its golden and purple clouds, its bright waters and refreshing breezes. The rich tropic groves of Lahaina, the bright green cane-fields and verdant oasis of Lahainanaluna, never looked more attractive, and barren mountains, now sered and withwested to the light. Daylight found us between Molokal and Lanal on the next morning, but linging our disappointment, when the salls flapped didy against the masts all might, and the sum rose next morning is a brazen sky, without air enough to rippie the water of the lake-like ocean channel. The carth seemed in deep sieep, the clouds hung motionless as mourning drapery, till the hot sun tinted them with a flame-like coloring. The noon-spanish called on theirancient gods, and the "handles" whistled. Night settled down upon ns, but mot a faint sign of the "piping wind." The moon gilded the mountain Islands with a wierd beauty as we drifted noiselessly and between Molokal and Lanal on the next morning, but linging our disappointment. and barren mountains, now sered and with-

The Court, after hearing his strong and urgent reasons, overruled the motion on the ground that the statutes of the kingdom conferred no such right on the prosecution. The attorneys for the defendants, Mossrs Stanley and Thompson, then filed a challenge to the array of jurors, alleging that they had not been drawn and summoned according to law. The motion was sustained and the panel discharged. The Court remarked that the exigencies of the case required a jury and ordered one summoned from the by-standers.

Objections were made by the attorneys in court, as the several cases were called, but overruled by the Court, and ex ceptions taken as a matter of course

The Attorney General entered a nolle prosequi as to Cheong Kam Ford in the Chinese sequi as to Cheong Raim Ford in the Chinese murder case, on the ground it is said, that he voluntarily offered to become a witness for the crown against his co-defendant, Lan-on. At a later stage of the proceedings, on the point being raised by the defendants' attorneys, the Court decided that the case of the King vs. Cheong Kam Ford, et al., was not before the Circuit Court of the 2d Judi-cial Circuit, owing to the fact that the Clerk of the Sunreme Court had not sent a certifiof the Supreme Court had not sent a certifi-cate of the action of the Supreme Court on the exceptions taken in this case at the last special term.

Several other cases were disposed of, and several divorce cases were heard in chamber several divorce cases were heard in channels that is, in the court house, during the recesses of the court. Some of the parties were made happy by the matrimonial yoke being sundered, while others went away gloomy, disappointed and disgusted with judges and courts generally.

R. H. Stanley, and W. C. Jones, for the defendant.

As a finale to this case when Cornwell left for home at Walkara for home at Walkapu, previous to the judgment and sentence of the court, the Sheriff P. H. Treadway sent a sealed letter to C. Lohe, who was at work superintending the mountain road, with orders to let him pass, as he had taken the Colonel, one of his attor-

as he had taken the Colonel, one of his attorneys as a substitute, and he thought it would be great economy in the working of the road, as they could dispense with the use of pick axes thereafter. This allusion to the prominent part of the countenance, very clearly indexted who was intended.

Manuel Flores, vs. John Boardman.—Appeal from the commissioner of private ways and water privileges, District of Wailuku. This case was heard in bonco, after the judge had visited the locum in quo, and decided in favor of the plaintiff. The counsel for defendant gave notice that he would file exceptions in the case.

We were not without amusements in Lahaina. Independent of the scenes of interest in court and the many suggestive subjects outside among the interesting population, we were shomewhat staggered at a neatly printed announcement that there would be a concert at the Lahaina English School, given by the beautiful property of the proof of the school on Thursday night printed annuncement that there would be a concert at the Lahaima English School, given by the boys of the school, on Thursday night the 10th inst. Cariosity was excited, not only as to the extempore printing press which had been rigged up to make the announcement, but to listen to, if not, to enjoy the performance. The court and bar and most of the Haole citizens went with a "right smart sprinkling" of natives. I went as a matter of course. The scholars, pupils of Mr. Higgins, performed remarkably well, and I think only lack the necessary instruments and practise to make excellent musicians. Besides the instrumental performance on the plano, cornet, flute, ac, they sang several popular airs with decided success and called down the appiause of the house. Mrs. Higgins who has an excellent voice, in good training, sang several pieces, she was encored and received enthusiastic appliance. But th decided int of the evening was a small, roguish looking boy, dressed up as a girl but with most unmanageable hoops, who sang a song illustrative of the proposition, that it would "never do to die an old maid." He brought down peals of laughter and was warmly encored. The performance was concluded with the song of "Johnsuy Smoker," in which all joined and displayed a lively sense of the Indicrous, and great power of mininery in the performance of a cate looking boy that eclipsed the anties of a white whiskered monkey. When we left, each one was pleased with himself and everybody else.

each one was pleased with himself and everybody else.

The Court was pers on Thursday evening, the 17th. The Mary Ellen had been lying in the harbor since moruing with her signal flying. We were all on board at 5 p. m., except the presiding justice, who came at last, like justice, rather turdily. With a heavy surf on the reef and an unsettled, shifting, baffling, nondescript breeze, we weighed anchor and moved abead. The young moon smiled through light clouds, and the wind grew fainter and finiter in its dying puffs, until it became defunct, to our utter disguest, a little above Kannapail. We had started, in bright hopes of the trades, and a fair prospect of morning. The sun rose glaringly mountains of Molokai, throwing ered by the long continued drought. A light radiance to the west, indicating a day of intense heat. The same brazen sky, that now alns of West Mani, which in the flashing radiance to the west, indicating a day of intense heat. The same brazen sky, that now appeared like burnished steel with the glow of a white heat upon it, the same motionless diance of the setting sun, appeared like a clouds, the same occan of molten lead with diance of the setting sun, appeared like a crown of glory.

Once on shore, through the activity of the boat-boys, we were greeted by our ever hospitable friends, and were soon so completely cared for, that we felt as if we could cast care to the winds, and having performed those ablutions so refreshing after a seavoyage, I threw myself back in my cushioned rocker, and exclaimed, "Why can not I take mine case in mine inn?" But the visions of Shaspeare passed away as the fragrant fumes of the Celestial herb announced more substantial refreshments. "The disture's sweet restorer, bnimy sleep," renewed my energies, and I arose a refreshed, if not a better, man. On the next day, a stirring ride over the mountain, by where the enterprising road supervisor was engaged in constructing a new road, which bids fair to be excellent, and a return, on Tuesday morning, through the fresh and exhilerating air, prepared me for other business, and the scenes and incidents of the Circuit Court. At its beginning, I invoked the shades of Jeremy Bentham, Lord Brougham, and all other law reformers to infuse their spirit over it, and give it a new touch of vigor in these Isles of the sea.

Well, it began, and terminated.

It commenced on Tuesday, the 8th, the Hon. A. S. Hartwell, of the Supreme Court, presiding, associated with the Hon. A. J. Lawrence, Local Circuit Judge of the Island of Mani.

For some cause, the civil docket was called first, but no cases were ready, and none were definitely fixed for trial. The criminal docket was then called, and a motion made by His Excellency the Attorney-General, in the case of the Ringth on the same to the island of Oahu.
